

Article 371: Salvation and “stuff” -part 1

What does the word “salvation” mean to you? In keeping with the original Hebrew word, salvation means enlarging ...or creating space for ...as in God rescues you from confined situations of opposition and peril ...and delivers you to the spaciousness of prosperity and wellbeing, ...then Jesus changed salvation to his being your deliverance from sin.

All of these descriptions mean “to save”! ...and seem to indicate that you most earnestly seek to be saved ...especially from the loss of self at death, ...so let’s discuss “to save”.

What was the very first thing you learned about computers? ...Save! Save! Save! ...or what you are working on will be lost, ...no questions ...and no recovery. Of course, I came to personal computers in 1953, which was before most of you were even born, so first-things may have changed a little since then. We didn’t have computer screens to watch the action ...and the computer didn’t ask if you wanted to save ...it was “do or die”, ...well, it was “do or lose everything”, ...and the principle is the same in your life today: you want to save yourself and be personally saved, you want to be saved from your mistakes, from pain and illness, from difficulties, from doubt and confusion, and from your undesirable emotions ...and you want to be delivered to prosperity and wellbeing, ...you are obsessed with being personally saved.

In this light, religion declared that God knows everything about you ...and offers his love and grace for belief, faith, obedience, and worship, ...and maybe that’s true ...and right for you, but I see things differently, I see a privilegedbeing to whom everything you are and do is automatically saved to this “personal file” ...so this file can be opened to you again and again ...if that’s what you desire, ...and it is to this privilegedbeing that I usually speak ...or try to speak when I talk with you, and I frequently listen to this privilegedbeing when listening to you speaking to me. This is intimate communication.

Before you believe, think, say, or do something, always remember the question on your computer, “Do you want to save this?” ...because, in life, everything in your life is automatically saved as data•information to an eternal privilegedbeing file ...and that alone offers you salvation from good•evil ...and is the source of your eternally resurrected self and life, ...therefore, we need to discuss this relationship a little more ...and much more closely, ...beginning with the understanding that eternal does not mean immortal.

Recently, I received the following e-mail from Pat:

If I understand your words correctly one of things I could do for Xandu is showing that it is possible to be in the world of duality and the structure of language without being trapped in it. This sounds very much like a purpose. If it is, then where is my free will? Also, since Xandu dreams or minds me into existence isn't it a mistake to say I have free will as some entity distinct from Xandu? Isn't my distinction from Xandu a convenience of language? Wouldn't a broader description have what is called me, and that called Xandu, be seen together as a greater whole that is exercising free will?

Finally, for now, I have very little confidence in my understanding or appreciation of that which you refer to as meaning. I would benefit from more words on that subject.

Less a few introductory words, my answer to Pat was:

Your first question shows a focus on you as "primary" ...and that doing any such thing for a privilegedbeing lessens you, burdens you, and restricts your free will, ...however, if I say that this is your privilegedbeing, then this doesn't lessen you, burden you, or restrict you ...right? ...but this leads to other complications ...because you want to be "prime" in the relationship. For example, if this privilegedbeing was showing you "that it is possible to be in the world of duality and the structure of language without being trapped in [this]," you wouldn't have any of these concerns, ...would you? ...you would say that "I have the free will to ask privilegedbeing to do this for me ...and privilegedbeing has the free will to do them ...or not do them." If you are showing these things to thy privilegedbeing called Xandu, you are living as a privilegedbeing, so who first-benefits in this?...and if you are not living as a privilegedbeing, you are not showing these things, ...either or, this is your free will choice ...not a purpose that destroys free will.

I have constantly said that "you don't have free will to live as you truly desire ...and you cannot follow free will to live as you truly desire, but in living as you truly desire ...that is free will, ...thus, living as a privilegedbeing as you truly desire which shows Xandu that it can be done, IS free will in action ...not an action restricting free will.

About Xandu minding you. Last week, I referred to Adam (also known as Xandu) sitting on a rock outside of Eden projecting himself into good•evil situations to see if it is possible to actually live in the duality world without being trapped by good•evil, ...for if he could really do this, then, by forsaking good•evil, Adam could re-enter Eden and live safely there ...and after eating from the tree of everlasting life, he could continue being an eternal privilegedbeing in heaven ...or in a physical world outside of heaven without all the dire warnings from God.

Back to Adam, or Xandu, sitting on a rock minding images of himself (you) and situations to see if it is possible to live without good•evil. Let's assume he's tried doing good and right, tried acceptance and forgiveness, tried love and helping others, tried judging in goodness, tried ego, tried the true path to enlightenment, tried faith and worship, ...and even tried suicide, discovering himself and observing himself, but nothing worked, ...whatever is Xandu (Adam) to do? ...if he thinks and controls his projected thoughts (as you), then you will only do as Xandu (aka your personal God) thinks ...and you do not have free will, ...however, if Xandu (God) is wise, he will give his images and mind “free rein” (aka free will) to see what will happen.

Someone once said, “I believe everyone should get rich and famous ...and do everything they ever wanted or dreamed of so they will see that that’s not the answer.” If Xandu controls his images (you), he will only continue his “known stuff”. If you really live as you truly desire ...as you have chosen to be alive, then Xandu has released his images (you) to free will, which you may or may not live. People in life who do not feel they have free will ...or have only limited free will, are living the controlled visions of the privilegedbeing they are living.

[Attention to thy privilegedbeing will give your life
a profound intensity and expansion.](#)
